Greeting

tomary excuse for being. The bope the volume is a lens to focus our Swarth= more life upon a few recording plates, and especially to bring out those sunny spots which will cheer our bearts in after years. If you find the images crude or ill=formed, attribute the imperfections to a flaw in the lens; at least bave the charity to smile and say nothing. In conclusion, we earnestly thank all our friends who, by word or deed, have belped to make our publication less unworthy of dear old Swarthmore.

A VERY SUBSTANTIAL SIGN OF PROGRESS

SIGN NUMBER TWO

The Spirit and Progress of Swarthmore

BY JOSEPH SWAIN, LL. D.

COLLEGE, like any other institution or enterprise, must increase its facilities for usefulness from time to time if it is to command public confidence. It is profitable to ask ourselves occasionally what a year has brought forth for us. It is also instructive to ask this same question concerning Swarthmore. Does Swarthmore show encouraging progress since the publication of the Halcyon of 1904? A statement of fact should give us an answer.

Material Additions. Two sections of Wharton Hall, the new dormitory for men, have been completed. The building is well arranged, modern, and beantifully located. Fifty-five young men have found their college home therein during this year. Its popularity is shown by the fact that the majority of the upper classmen chose rooms in this hall, and many more students desired rooms here than could be accommodated. There is need of a new section to Wharton Hall as soon as funds are provided for the purpose. There is also need for additional dormitory accommodations for women. The new men's dormitory is named in honor of Joseph Wharton, President of the Board of Managers, who has made numerous gifts to Swarthmore, among them the $50,000 for this building.

A new Chemistry building has been completed at a cost of nearly $35,000. This building was made possible by the consent of one of the large contributors to the endowment fund that this amount from his gift to the College should be used for this purpose. The fire of last year, which started in the Chemistry lecture room in Science Hall, probably hastened the erection of the hall of Chemistry by one year. This building has now been in use several months. There is none more complete of its kind owned by any small college in the United States. In some particulars it is superior to any other hall of Chemistry in this country. That it is appreciated by the students is shown by the way they crowd into its laboratories. Many work here not only during their required hours, but at other times. This building furnishes an illustration of how good equipment contributes to earnestness in the pursuit of a subject as well as to more satisfactory results. This chemical building with its equipment is typical of what Swarthmore should have in every one of her science departments.

The rooms damaged by the fire of last year in Science Hall have been repaired and refitted for the work in Physics and Engineering, and Professors Hoadley and Stine have been asked to divide this whole building in such a way as the work of their departments require. Thus, the crowded condition in the Physical and Engineering departments has been partially relieved, the equipment much increased. The generous gift of $1,000 from Morris L. Clothier has materially assisted in this direction. There are still urgent needs, as the following paragraph from the Managers' recent report recognizes:

"The large increase in the number of students in the Engineering department has emphasized the fact that we should spend several thousand dollars next year to improve this department. Recent investigation shows that the engineers who have gone out from Swarthmore feel that they are equipped for the work as fully as men who go out from larger and more expensive schools. This standard Swarthmore should continue to hold, but with the tremendous stride in the Engineering schools throughout the country we cannot hope to hold our place or our students without increasing equipment, while we raise our standard and improve our methods as well. Besides much additional apparatus, we should have new shops."

Such recognition from our Managers makes it probable that these needs will soon be met.

Two residences for professors have been completed on the College grounds. The building of residences for the Faculty on the campus is not merely of interest to the professors concerned. It brings them nearer to the College and identifies them more distinctly with the College life. It also makes possible the closer contact of the teacher and student, which is one of the chief claims for the superiority of the life of the small college over that of larger institutions. We hope in the future to increase the opportunities at Swarthmore for the still closer relation of the Faculty and students.

A college is fortunate which can retain all its efficient and experienced Faculty, and can add, year by year, new teachers who are fresh from their graduate study and full of enthusiasm for their work. Swarthmore has lost but one of her regular instructors this year. Beatrice Magill resigned her position as Lecturer in Art History and Director of the Studio, to be succeeded in January by Frances M. Dadmun, of Wellesley. The other new appointments are Robert C. Brooks, of Cornell University, as Joseph Wharton Professor of Economics; Lewis A. Darling, of Leland Stanford Junior University, as Assistant Professor of Mechanical Engineering; Franklin Spencer Edmonds, as Assistant Professor of Law, and Garret W. Thompson, as Instructor in Composition.

These additional teachers have offered several new courses of instruction. In all cases except that of Law the new courses are in the direction of the extension of lines already taught. The Law is a new subject in Swarthmore. This course as given by Professor Edmonds should be very helpful to both men and women. It fills an important place for different reasons: It is well adapted to the purpose of any student whose aim is general training; there is no student but who in his life work will find some occasion for the application of the principles of law. It is, as well, a good preliminary course for a law student.

These substantial additions in buildings, equipment, and teachers, together with the increased number of students coming from a larger number of States, are tangible signs of progress. We welcome a reasonable degree of expansion. We value much more, however, certain qualities of mind and heart which manifest themselves in the life of the College, and which crystallize into what may be termed the Swarthmore spirit.

Our students come from many schools. They are picked young men and women and must meet new standards. Every new round the student climbs gives him a new horizon, a larger view, and every step in the ascension brings new opportunities and, therefore, new obligations.

The college student has to consider not only how his each act will affect him but how it will affect his college. Paul said when he was a child he spake as a child, but when he became a man he put away childish things. The College trusts its students as young men and women eager to make the most of themselves and anxious to receive that training which will prepare them for the duties of educated men and women in the world.

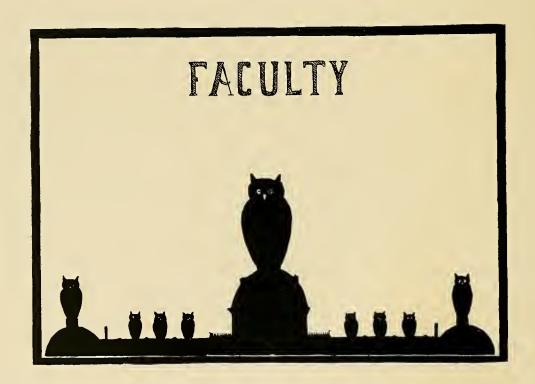

Swarthmore relies little on rules and regulations to make her students do the right thing. She asks them to beautify and cherish the Swarthmore spirit. This spirit should lead the student to live the life of the cultivated man or woman. This life is not something that one can throw on or off as a garment. One cannot gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles. The oak tree is always an oak tree.

Rafinesque said his heart yearned to become a naturalist, and "I became one," he adds. The student's attainments are determined most by his ideals. If he has high ideals with sufficient will power he can constantly grow toward them. The Swarthmore spirit should never permit him to do less than his best.

On the occasion of the Bi-Centennial at Yale, a few years ago, I was walking, one morning, about the Yale campus. I came near a portion of the old Yale fence, on which was seated one of the Yale graduates. I saw from his countenance that he was living over the old college days. I engaged him in conversation, and among other things I asked him to define for me the Yale spirit. He said it is "always doing the very best you can." This is the Swarthmore spirit, too. It demands of her sons and daughters that they, not only on occasion, but always, do the best they can. Anything that is worth doing is worth doing well, and with all one's mind and heart and strength. The student is in college to develop body and mind and sonl. He should make a programme which will provide for all these.

President Roosevelt, in speaking to the boys of Philadelphia, said, "Work hard and play hard." There is no necessary conflict. The one should go hand in hand with the other. The student should have a time for each, and not let one interfere with the other. Neither play nor study alone can justify one's presence here. The Swarthmore spirit neither fosters the idler who is indifferent to the serious work of the College, nor the bookworm merely. Let these go elsewhere. The Swarthmore spirit would have the students find joy in recreation and play; joy in their intellectual life; and, above all, joy in the life of manly men and womanly women.

Sometime since a parent of Swarthmore student said to me with much feeling, "I was attracted very much by the statement in your catalogue concerning the aim of the College." He then quoted these words: "The intention of the founders was to make the promotion of Christian character the first consideration, and provide opportunities for liberal culture while maintaining a high standard of scholarship." "That is what we want," he said. I am sure that is what the Swarthmore spirit demands. The College spirit to-day is the outgrowth and sum of the ideas, thoughts, and acts of the students, present and past. Let the present generation of College students be sure that the spirit is beautified and enriched by their presence and influence.

To Mineteen=Five

EARS ago, when the Fates were weaving the web of the twentieth century, they ran out of thread just as they came to 1905, and were forced to use the old ravelings and knotty ends. And then, as if ashamed of their handiwork, they threw aside the half-finished web, and taking bright, strong threads, fresh from the rainbow, they tried to atone by making 1906 a thing of beauty.

Poor old 1905! When they were Freshmen they did make a few valiant efforts to give evidence of their existence. When they were Sophomores, they feebly gave up the ghost. Why? 1906 entered that year. Since then they have made spasmodic gasps for recognition. Why, they even made a tie in the Sophomore-Freshman Oratorical Contest. In truth, it is not for us to disparage their efforts. They have been trying for four years to get a Constitution; we even lent them ours. But they excel in one thing. In the annals of Swarthmore they will go down as the greatest politicians on record. Their class elections are a thing of wonder; the world stands still and marvels.

They have tried hard,—at least give them credit for that. They have failed,—judge them mercifully. Placed in contrast with the glowing colors of 1906, their ragged ends and faded pattern are more to be pitied than blamed. They are doubly unfortunate—in being what they are, and in being so at the time they are. They have their bright places. Let us forget their ugly knots. And when, in centuries to come, naught remains but this little fragment to tell of a struggle and a failure, may posterity be blind to their faults, even as we have been.

AR in the limits of etheral space,
Piercing the dark confines of deepest night,
Subjecting by a power able all
Rebellious Evil Forces to dismay,
There came a panse, omnipotent, prolonged,
As e'en a Presence fair from Heav'n itself;
Lulled in their orbits all the planets slept,
While silence, deep, profound, reigned everywhere.
A millon lights flared up and cast a pall,
A ghoulish glare of weird uncertain rays;
The shuddering air a million echoes rent
When throes of energy immense constrained
The halted force of Nature to return.

Such was the birth of good old Nineteen-Six,
The class of sturdiest men and fairest maids
That ever dwelt within these Swarthmore halls;
And with us came a man, the best of earth,
A prince of all good fellows—Prexie Swain.
What need to herald now with martial note
Our many varied triumphs of the past!
What need to scoff with ill concealed scorn
At those who strove for Nineteen-Five and failed!
Why vainly waste a moment here to tell
The Sophs' insane attempts to imitate?

Enough to cite the Faculty decree That Dr. Hull a course shall give in our Fair history, which every man should take. Yet who forgets or ever could forget Our first few days at this fair college town? As dreaming by the embers' dying glow We linger o'er the memories of The Rush, When we did put the Sophomores to flight! The sudden death of every poster green, And triumph in our maiden foot-ball game, Served but to make us surer of our place Which we have occupied unto this day. 'Twas even then there started to appear Some notable reforms in college life. No longer students dodged from hall to hall, Uncertain lest some wretched prof. in stealth Pursued to spot them if they chanced to smoke. In fact, the honor system's good results Were brought about by Prexie Swain and US. Again in nineteen-four 'twas just the same;— Another class was ground into the dust-Once more we triumphed in athletic games, As our fair banner on the dome made boast. And so 't hath been throughout our college life; Our men have taken foremost rank in all. In foot-ball Bower, Perkins, Crowell, and Lamb Have made the game at Swarthmore what it is; While in lacrosse our record's just as good, With Henry Price to pass Johns Hopkins' goal; (For Price hath spurned poor Nineteen-Five for us). In basket-ball Ed Palmer, fat and fair,

Upholds the honor of old Nineteen-Six, While Roberts doth the hammer throw with might, And Caldwell runs the hundred wondrous fast. In music and the arts 'tis likewise true: The glory of our classmates waxeth great; The Glee Club stands a tribute to our class, With Crowell's voice to charm the multitude; Tess Ryder follows the debate with zest, And his fair colleague logic doth expound. Forever thus it runs; our glorious class Hath always boldly led and always will In all the acts which make this Swarthmore life A varied, shifting scene, a pleasant dream Until the last sad day we graduate. Now mark you well these parting lines, and know That neither men nor worlds exist for aye; That sometime in the future dim, untold, Must come an end; and with our death 'twill come. Put not these words to idle thought nor whim. Celestial powers have to fate ordained That in the distant year of eighty-one A man, gray-bearded, peacefully shall lie At Death's dark door—the last of us to quit These hills and valleys fair of Mother Earth-Then with his fleeting spirit shall there come A darkness which no ray of light may pierce; Repulsion in all atoms shall prevail, And chaos—whence the universe—ensue.

MING so close in the wake of a great ship, your little bark driven by the high winds found it hard not to founder in the rough waters. At first you tried bravely to keep up with the master craft, but the waves were fierce and strong and you found, like many others, that 1906 has no peers. So you have fallen respectfully behind, content to keep in the lee of your protector. It is a big and terrible ocean, is it not? You wander far from the right course at times, and then some wiser hand pilots you back into the only true way-that of your illustrious predecessors. We do not grudge you the assistance of our example. Rather, let us say that 1906 realizes fully that her mission in life is to serve as a leading light to others. Your safety lies in obscurity—you are frail, and though your sails are large and wide spread, you would easily capsize and you cannot brave the dangers of an independent voyage. Your sails, white and fair at the beginning, are already smirched and briny and torn. But if you sail with your eyes ever on your guide you may come in time to some quiet haven where you may anchor in safety and pass the rest of your days in happy oblivion. But one note of warning! In the distance we see another boat, manned by baby hands and bearing 1908 in childish characters. They are catching up, 1907. Take care lest they, too, leave you behind.

ALL Hail, Freshman Class! Our babies and our protegés! You are young, you are small, but never fear; you will get there some day. Your feeble efforts to follow in the tracks of your noble allies may cause a smile; but never mind, little ones, you are growing. Already we see promise of worthy successors to take our place in 1906. The shock will be hard, but you must stand by to comfort the College in her great affliction. Your history is as yet unmade, but you have four long years of conquest before you. We are not afraid. With such a guiding light as 1906 you cannot fail to do great deeds.

Good luck and Godspeed, Class of 1908!

The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society

HE Scientific Society was organized in March, 1895, and later received the name of The Joseph Leidy Scientific Society of Swarthmore College. Its object is to keep abreast with the discoveries in the scientific world. There are five sciences included in the work of the Association: Astronomy, Biology and Physiography. Chemistry, Engineering, and Physics. The programs of the meetings consist of a report from the instructors in each of the above departments concerning the recent discoveries in their respective sciences. Papers are then read by different members on topics of scientific interest, followed by an open discussion by the Society. The interesting character of these programs is shown by the full attendance at the meetings, from both the College and the borough. The Executive Board consists of a committee of two from each department—one instructor and one student.

The residents of the borough of Swarthmore are eligible to membership, as well as the students and officers of the College. The meetings are held in Science Hall on the second Third-day evening of each month during the college year.

The Young Friends' Association

HIS Association is intended primarily for students, instructors, and other members of our College community; but a considerable number of the neighbors are members, and are identified with its work.

The objects of the organization are two-fold: First, the study of the history, literature, and principles of the Society of Friends, and secondly, the consideration of the vital questions of religion and spirituality which we meet in our every day life.

The regular meetings are held in the College parlor, on the evening of the third First-day of every month during the College year.

In Loving Memory of William Mullen

Deceased April 1, 1905

ILLIAM MULLEN was born November 15th, 1841, in the section of Ridley Township now known as Leiperville, and in Delaware County passed nearly all the years of his life. During the Civil War he joined a Delaware regiment, serving the full time of his enlistment. Having learned the trade of a morocco finisher, William followed that occupation until about thirty-nine years ago, when he lost his arm in a railroad accident at Chester. On January 29th, 1875, he was married to Miss Matilda Johnson, who survives him at their home in Media. To the union were born nine children, the youngest of whom is eleven years old.

In 1877 began his long term of service as the College watchman, and for twenty-eight consecutive years he has faithfully attended to every duty of that office. A few of our older friends remember well how William discovered the great fire of 1881, and also the unusual presence of mind which he showed in quietly notifying all the occupants of the building. With lively interest and appreciation he always watched the sports or other functions of our College life; to the trivial "stunts" of mischievous students William was always blind, but, on the other hand, he never failed to distinguish between fun and rowdyism. "Honest, sober, and industrious," are the words with which a life-long friend affectionately spoke of his old comrade; and these, with his gentleness, are the noble traits which have endeared him to every one of us, and which have won in all our hearts a tender regard for his memory.

HE 1904 foot-ball season marked Swarthmore's entrance into a class of colleges second only to the "Big Six." From about twenty husky candidates Coach Brooke and Captain Lippincott developed a team which made itself known throughout the country. Perhaps the greatest achievement of any Swarthmore team was our victory over the Navy (9-0), won upon their own field. Pennsylvania, too, has us to thank for the only mark upon her opponents' list of scores; the figures "6-4" indicate how narrowly they escaped a drubbing. To Columbia and Lafayette we acknowledge defeats, but neither contest reflects any discredit upon Swarthmore.

The Haverford game, as usual, was the climax of the season. Never before had Whittier Field seen such a throng of spectators, and never before was such general interest shown in this annual contest. Our victory (27-6) was well earned, and fairly represented the comparative strength of the two teams, but nevertheless Haverford was plucky to the last scrimmage.

That the team successfully played so hard a schedule with only a few injuries was directly due to Dr. Cummings who, we are glad to say, returned to his old position of trainer last September. A good share of credit must also be given the scrub men, who patiently bore an almost daily gruelling from the heavy 'varsity. To Manager Palmer we all join in expressing our appreciation of his careful and successful management. Let us hope that future seasons will add as much honor to the foot-ball records of Swarthmore.

BYBKEL BYTT

HE season of 1904-1905 in basket-ball is one that may be considered very successful in many particulars. Although in games won the percentage is about even, yet the character of the teams played, and the fact that the Christmas trip was the longest taken by any Swarthmore team, mark it as a season which may long be remembered.

The New England trip, although not a great game winning expedition, furnished the team with much valuable practice in a different style of play from that heretofore used by us; gave people who had never heard of this College before a chance to learn of its existence, and established a record for strong, consistent, gentlemanly playing, which will not be forgotten by the many who witnessed the games.

During the latter part of the season new conditions arose, and from the middle of January until the last game we had a continuous string of victories, including the University of Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Lehigh, University of Maryland, and Pennsylvania State.

Thanks are due to Captain Palmer and Dr. Cummings for their hard, persistent work in the development of the team under the conditions which confronted them this year, and much interest should center about next season's advent.

NTER-COLLEGIATE Champions of America is the title by which we are proud to hail our 1904 lacrosse team. With the single exception of a defeat from the Crescent Athletic Club, the season was a continuous string of victories. Team after team went down with hardly a show of resistance until we met our old rival, Johns Hopkins, on their home grounds at Baltimore. With championship honors to decide the game was bitterly fought, but the score of 8-3 tells the story of our victory. As a fitting close to the season came our triumph over the University of Toronto, the Canadian Champions who also yielded their title to us.

This season, for the first time, we were fortunate enough to have the services of a Canadian Coach who could give the team his whole attention. To this fact is chiefly due the great improvement. Mr. Davis found an aggregation of good strong men, and by perfecting them in accurate stick work, developed his brilliant team. Our greatest strength lay in the three center men, whose hard, fast work was a mystery to opposing teams. The attack could not be stopped, while the heavy defense effectually blocked our goal.

Every year sees lacrosse holding a more important place in College athletics, and even those teams which have had the advantage of an early start will have to be on the alert if they are going to keep abreast with the game. We are now at the top of the ladder, and for a growing institution like Swarthmore, there is no excuse to fall.

Inter=collegiate Lacrosse Association of the United States

Organized, November 30th, 1901.

President:

R. G. KIRK, Lehigh.

Vice-President:
W. H. LINTON, Swarthmore,

Secretary-Treasurer:

L. A. Dill, Johns Hopkins.

JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY, SWARTHMORE COLLEGE,

LEHIGH UNIVERSITY, STEVENS INSTITUTE.

WARTHMORE is very fortunate in having on Whittier Field a quarter-mile track second to none in Pennsylvania, with the possible exception of Franklin Field. Yet we have been slow, very slow, during the past few years in realizing the possibilities for development of representative track teams.

The past season was somewhat of a disappointment in many ways; the dual meet with the Carlisle Indians being lost by a very close margin, while the annual field games were slow and uninteresting. A team was sent to represent the College at the Inter-Collegiates, but the absence of our usual entry in the Annual Pennsylvania Relay Races was much regretted by the student body.

This next season should see the all-round development of our promising material into the best team that has represented the College for many years. Although several prominent men are ineligible for the Inter-Collegiates, yet in the dual meet with Lehigh, as well as in the relay races, Captain Caldwell should lead a more representative team than our aggregation of last year.

Wm. H. Linton,

Manager.

Literary Miscellany

Prologue

As the fading links of a daisy chain, Found in a long-forgotten drawer, When the storms of winter surge and roar, Bring back the spring and its joy again,

Bring back the whisper of April showers,
The clear blue sky, and the robin call,—
The warm sun beaming over all,
And the bees' dull hum through the drowsy hours,

So may this simple wreath of praise, Of singing and laughter, of love and truth, Bring back, to-morrow, our long-lost youth And memories sweet of these Hallyon Days.

When our dreams are shattered, one by one, Perchance its perfume may still the pain; Behold, oh, comrade, our daisy chain Of youth and its songtime, our Hallyon.

Sonnet

The purple gleam of twilight's loveliest hour Sheds o'er the silent waters of the Crum

A glimmering veil, that seems to go and come 'Till darkness settles; every tiny flower
It fills with conscious grace, until this bower

Of beauty seems to me a place divine

Where dwell the myriad wild flowers—elementine And sweet arbutus fresh from dewy shower. The fragrant violet, nestled near a stone,

Though modestly it nods to summer's breeze,

Is loveliest far of all. There's one alone

I reverence, modest e'en like to these Fair violets; she, the fair-eyed one.

Oh, would 'twere mine alone the power to please!

ACT I.

(Scene—Outside the East Wing. Pale moon just rising. On the Gym. steps the three troubadours are inharmoniously torturing their mandolins and wailing "Far Away in the South.")

(Enter Romeo.)

Rom. (plucking a few discords from his lute and hurling them recklessly at a window above him)—

The moon that yonder climbs the eastern skies Casts over all a sheen of silvery calm.

On yonder steps a minstrel sweetly sings

His ardent love unto his lady fair.

O come, my love, awake, awake and list!

1 sing to thee—

Jul. (at window)— Well, Romeo, what would'st now?

Rom.—I'd tell thee, fairest, of my endless love, And of—

Jul.— Enough, enough, thou false gossoon,
But tell me, rather, hast thou gotten yet
Those tickets to the "Piff! Paff! Pouf!"—what savest?

Rom.—Ah, pray, my fair, it was but yester e'en
I visited in Wilmington a maid;
And too the class dues with mine purse forspent
Much havoc made—

Jul.— Away, but mind thou this;
If thou'lt not take me to this magic play,
I'll give the icy glance, the marble heart,
And send thee packing like a bum! Begone!

(Juliet retires from her window, and Romeo slinks off. Voices are heard approaching, and Romeo, pausing by the main entrance, listens. Enter Falstaff and Pistol.)

Prs. (loudly)—Eh, eh, Sir John, 'twas in my Freshman year It happened—

Fal.— Tush, man; I was just to say
In the fair city of Chicago—

Rom. (stepping up)—Good even, gentle sirs.

Pis.—Good even, Romeo, and yet thou look'st Somewhat forlorn. What can it be hath failed?

Rom.—Alack, good sirs, 'tis sweet-faced Juliet; And all because my purse is somewhat lean.

Fal.—The only fault of many a better man; You know, 'tis often said that money talks.

Rom.—The only thing it's ever said to me
Was nothing more nor less than just good-by.

Pis.—Well, what of that? Take heart! Away with thee
To the money lender. Well 'tis said by all
That Shylock hath a pretty store of gold;
And he will lend to thee without a scruple.

Rom.—S'blood, my lords, it is a clever plan.

You have infused new hope into this brain.

Adieu.

(Exeunt the trio.)

ACT II.

(Scene—Before the pet just after supper; many maids and men passing to and fro. The three witches seen standing at one side, talking and easting sly glances at the mirror.)

1st Witch—Ah, sisters fair, quite sure it seems to me That we will catch them e'er the night is done.

2D Witch—The magic that there lies in maiden's glance, They say, would soften e'en a heart of stone.

3D WITCH—Ah, yes, and when combined with wondrous charms As we have cast, it will be irresistible.

(All chant together.)

Powder-boxes, puffs, and rats,
Switches, curls, and picture hats;
Pads of every shape and size,
Belladonna for the eyes;
Complexion tonic, rollers, too—
All these in our magic brew.
Then flavor with some dainty smiles
And various other cunning wiles,
And for the boys we're ready quite—
We'll have them at our feet all right.

(Armada, Bassanio, and Gaveston come striding boisterously down the hall, but stop when they see the witches, and pretend to examine a picture on the wall.)

Gav. (in a whisper)—I say, my lords, but is she not as fair As e'er your eyes have seen? With raven hair And cheeks of rosy hue, like eastern skies The sun hath kissed with morning's glory?

Bas.—You maid with golden hair! I much befear Me, I must go without my evening walk.

Arm.—And I my smoke. Confound it! Yet 'tis true
That fussing, like a kind narcotic soothes
The troubled brain. Lead on, my lords, lead on!

(They approach, and are triumphantly led by the maids into social hour. Enter the money lender, Shylock, and stands by the pet, soliloquizing.)

Shy.—To be or not to be—that is the question.

Whether better 'tis to clerk in Wall Street,

Watching the fluctuations of the mart

With eye of frenzied financier of state,

Or cram at Swarthmore this poor head of mine

With conics, understanding not one whit—

(Enter Romeo.)

Roм.—Good even, Shylock.

Shy. (fawning)— My Lord Romeo!

Rom.—I will not, Shylock, parry word for word,
But will have at thee with my purpose straight.

I have great need of funds. Come court then I

I have great need of funds. Come, canst thou lend?

SHY.—Soho, soho! But how much wilst thou have?

Rom.—Now, let me see—two seats for fifty cents,
Two fares from here to Phillie, dollar-forty.
Some peanuts makes the half, and lunch at Childs'—
Well, dollars two will do it. Wilst thou lend?

SHY.—Aye, I will that, but just on one condition.

Rom.—It name. I swear I will fulfill it well.

Shy.—Aha, I have thy word! Well, this it be:
In concert thou'rt soon billed to sing a song.
Then must thou feign an illness and allow Me in thy place to sing. I have, I think,
As good a voice as thine, if those about
Here could but recognize the fact and grant it.
Thou fail'st in this—'tis my resort to take
Fair Juliet to the College Spring Reception.
Here, take the coin!

(Handing some bills to Romeo.)

Rom.— But, Shylock, gentle sir—

SHY.—Enough, I have thy promise; 'tis a pact.

(Walks off, leaving Romeo somewhat dazed. Falstaff and Pistol come down the hall, both talking in loud tones.)

Fal.-I caught the ball, and tucked it 'neath my arm,

And started down the field at lightning speed—

Pis.—'Twas in my Sophomore year, I said, Sir John—

Fal.—Ohio men were round me thick as flies, Full three I carried on my manly back—

Pis.—But, hark! 'twas in my Sophomore year, I said—

FAL.—But what cared I for that? I ran the faster—

(They pass on down the hall, and Romeo, still dazed, follows them.)

ACT III.

(Night after the concert. Scene—Prexie's Room. The Tribunal scated behind a desk. Romeo and King John sitting on one side; Shylock, Falstaff, and Pistol on the other. Constable and Priest together. Wenches in attendance.)

Chief Justice (to constable)—Sirrah, what case have we to try to-day?

Con.-Your honor, it is that of Romeo.

He failed to keep a pact with Shylock here, Who doth, with justice, now demand the law.

C. J.—What witness have ye of this so-called pact?

Fal. (stepping forward)—I heard them both. Pray, let me tell the tale.

Pis.—Nay, me; for I was there as well as he—

(Door opens, and Portia enters attired in cap and gown.)

C. J.—Well, madame, who art thou—what dost thou here?

Portia—I'm of the Elementary Class of Law,

And come to plead the case for Romeo.

Say.—Your honor, I protest, it is not fair—

C. J.—Silence! It is within the Law. Speak, maid!

Por.—Like gentle rain is mercy, and so forth.

I'll not repeat the speech, ye know it well.

But what I will proceed to do is this:

I'll prove that Shylock never could have sung,

If Romeo had willed it. Guiltless he.

Point one: Old Shylock had a monstrous cold.

I know it, for he bought from Shirer's store

A pack of lozenges his throat to ease.

Point two: Shylock could not have sung, for he

Was strolling by the waters of the Crum,

Beneath the moonlight, with a maid I know.

Point three: It were against the law to let him sing,

For never fog horn brayed a coarser note,

No siren ever piped a squeakier trill Than Shylock whene'er he essays to sing. In justice free good Romeo. I've done!

(King John awakens long enough to murmur "Quite clevah!" and then relapses into slumber.)

1st Judge—'Tis marvelous true she speaks!
2d Judge— Aye, marry so!

Fal. (crossing over to Romeo)—I always said thou'rt right, good Romeo!

Pis.—Nay, me! 'twas I that said it first, good friend!

C. J. (rising)—Thou'rt free to go, my good Sir Romeo.

And thou, false Shylock, unto this take heed!

In future stick to barterings and trade,

And never lend on such security.

Adjourn the court!

(Romeo steps to door, opens it, and Juliet, who has been waiting outside, enters joyfully. Tableaux. Curtain falls.)

The Sad Fate of Little Jack Buzzy

There, little Jack, don't cry.

They have broken your slumber, I know,
And the fond free gleams
Of your love-sick dreams
Are things of a summer ago.
Yet Baltimore holds the fair cause of your sigh—
There, little Jack, don't cry.

There, little Jack, don't cry;
They have found you asleep, 'tis true,
And the image you clasped
As your eyes closed fast
Was dearest of all you knew;
But bliss will be yours in the sweet by-and-by—
There, little Jack, don't cry.

There, little Jack, don't cry;
They have taunted you sorely, I fear,
And they thought it a joke
To tell all the folk
How funny you looked, and queer;
But we'll never mind, she, you, and I—
There, little Jack, don't cry.

N. B.—Readers will kindly make no mention of this incident to Mr. Bosee, for The Halcyon has already been threatened with libel suits in attempt to suppress its publication.—Ed.

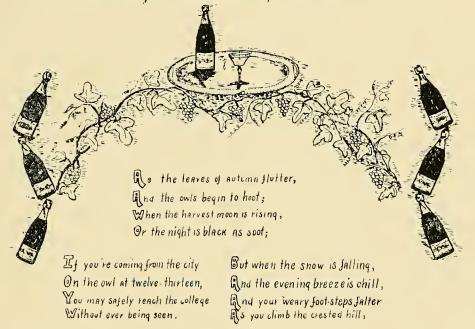

The Sluggard's Dream

Last night I lay a-sleeping,
There came a dream so fair:
I stood before the walls of Heaven,
In line to enter there.
But, lo! a mighty crowd surged in—
The gate was closing fast.
Saint Peter to the one in front,
"This one shall be the last."

This morn I lay a-sleeping,
When through my dreams there broke
The quarter bell, loud, shrill, and highIn terror I awoke.
I dressed in haste, ran down pell-mell,
The door was closing fast.
Saint Davis, to the one in front,
"No more will I let past."

Is there a moral in this all,
Forecast of future dearth?
Will I be ever forced to lose
The joys of heaven and earth?
Oh, saints benign, have pity, pray,
I think my lot's too hard.
Can't you arrange between yourselves
To have but one door barred?

"One Sabbath morning after a heavy snow, the Author arose from his downy couch and looking from the window, was much impressed by the scene portrayed below."

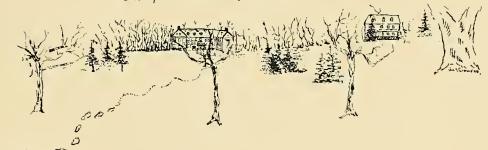

Then follow the asphaltum

If to Wharton Hall you go,

Or perhaps you'll leave behind you

Foot prints in the drifted snow.

H Warning

I.

OH, pretty, charming Freshman maid,
Beware this Swarthmore town!
Though in the east wing you may hide,
Or coolly turn him down,
He'll get you some day—just as sure—
If you're anywhere about;
For Dean will surely get you—
If

You

Don't

Watch

Out!

II.

You saucy, dashing Sophomore girl!—
It's you I'm talking to—
You needn't curl your lip and smile;
There's danger here for you.
Though gay and witty, heartless too,
He'll put you all to rout;
For Dean is going to get you—
If

You

Don't

Watch

Out!

III.

Fair Junior damsel, proud and wise,
Don't think that you're immune:
In study, classroom, or in den—
Or, just as well, the moon—
Corked up in bottled form, some day
He'll reach you without doubt;
For Dean won't fail to find you—
If

You

Don't

Watch

Out!

IV.

My haughty Senior lady fine,
Don't be so much at ease;
Your dignity is but a myth;
So down upon your knees!
You're lucky to escape so long,
But now you're up the spout.
For Dean will come and get you—
If

You

Don't

Watch

Out!

V.

Look here, young fellow Caldwell, you're About to catch it, too:
You've had your day, and that's enough;
Your game is almost through.
She's laying for you all the time,
And she'll get you, there's no doubt;
For The Dean will surely get you—
If

You

Don't

Watch

Out!

"Owed" to Borace

At Wharton Hall we have a man Whose life ambition seems to be In one small drawer to pack the house, Including both my "wife" and me.

He keeps my studs in "wifie's" shoes, And then he stuffs the blacking box With bath-robes, collars, cuffs, and shirts, Or pitches in my watch and socks.

At morn he decks the walls and doors With neckties, coats, and shaving cup, And then, in haste for something else, He makes our beds before we're up.

A rumbling roar, a crash, a bang!
The stranger gives a shriek and leaps;
But we are "on," and simply cuss—
We know full well that Horace sweeps.

Oh, Horace, we admit your worth,
But stop and think how one must feel
To find that you have hid his pants:—
For sake of style, abate your zeal!

Our Hetty Green

My name is Caroline Lukens,
Of my trade you know well enough;
Just call around at the bookroom
And have a look at my stuff.

A peep costs only a nickel,
A look will stand you a dime;
Just step inside and examine—
I'll charge you, of course, for your time.

Now here is a book by one Ganot— Quite cheap, as I am alive— Now take it at four and half: To-morrow, I'll make it five.

And this is a tiny manual;
It's a trifle dear, I admit,
But so short that the time you save
Will easily pay for it.

All this and a whole lot more
I have in stock, you know;
Pray, call again, my friends,
And don't forget your dough.

Vain bird of vaunted plumage, Your salad days are o'er; Your yellow fails to harmonize With garnet at Swarthmore.

"No bird ever flew so high
He didn't have to light."
So Harry Bulger once remarked;
I fear that he was right.

So come, brace up, and go have clipped What plumage still remains,
And use with more judicious care
The remnant of your brains.

Letters on Co-Education

We take great pleasure in publishing these letters from the following well-known authorities on the subject:

Dear Mr. Editor:

Yours of the ——— received, and would beg to state in reply that this by actual count is my 63d. I do not consider my attraction for Miss Johnson a permanent affair at all, but a mere fleeting episode. I find it very enjoyable, however, even more so than studying.

It is only natural that in my long and varied experience, I have gathered some little knowledge of the feminine character. I do not care to scatter this broadcast, but upon personal application will be glad to help any worthy person.

By observation of my watch, I find that it is 7.30 p. m., so I must stop and prepare Calculus for the day after to-morrow.

Yours Precisely,

REGGIE C. PRICE.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Co-education is a great thing. It has made a wonderful impression on me, an impression which I think will remain with me to the end of my days.

Yours very favorably,

JIMMIE LIPPINCOTT.

Hello, Tommie; Howdie!

By cripe! how are you, old boy! Co-education is just the thing for me. I like all the boys, don't you forget it, but you can't have half the sport if you're tied down to one. Gee! I wish the boys down at Sandy could see me up at this old joint. It's a swell place for fair.

I'll have to cut this off and get some exercise out of doors. Last wrestling bout I had with Serena, she threw me twice, but she had a strangle hold. Wait till I get her again; I'll make her look like Johnie Hayman on a cold morning.

So long. Yours for a good time,

M. Bentley.

Dear Editor:

I am decidedly in favor of co-education. It offers one a much better opportunity of showing himself and keeps one on continual good behavior.

Yours,

WALTER S. GEEWHIZ.

D-- Editor:

None of your d-- business!

Yours for free speech,

CHESTY B. BOWER.

Dear Mr. Editor:

We saw Bower's note before he mailed it. That is just what we would like to say, but can't, as we are after the Good Boy Medal.

Yours for the Gold.

REAL GENTILE JACKSON, EVER MANLY BASSETT.

Lieber Editor:

Ich habe received ihr letter und will sagen dass ich denke die Mädchen at Swatmore sind sehr gut. Sie sind nicht ein bit bashful and ich felt sehr wohl acquainted mit dem der moment ich hatte arrived.

Ich liebe 'em alle.

Mit lieb.

Oom Paul Krüger.

DR. CRAWFORD (FAMILIARLY KNOWN AS HENRY)

Each autumn brings its foot-ball men To share the honors of the game; Each June as many takes away, Who leave behind an empty name.

But here we have a gridiron star Who more consistently hath worked; Year in, year out, he's made the team, And never yet his duty shirked.

So drink a toast, ye merry men— A truer one ye never made,— A health to Henry and his pail, And may his colors never fade!

Another Farewell

My oldest pipe—the College rule— Alas! which shall it be? For Prex. hath said that I must choose Betwixt the rule and thee.

Farewell, old pipe; for many years
Thee's been my closest friend,
And ever ready at my side
Thy solace sweet to lend.

No more to old Fourth Hall I'll go When fails the twilight's glow, Or Wharton Hall, or Crocodile, To watch the old Crum flow.

No more while on the P. R. R.
Thy spirit I'll invoke,
And see the Prof. turn up his nose
At wreaths of waving smoke.

And so, farewell, a long farewell, Until Commencement's o'er, And then I'll go on smoking thee Just as I did before.

Our Prize Effort

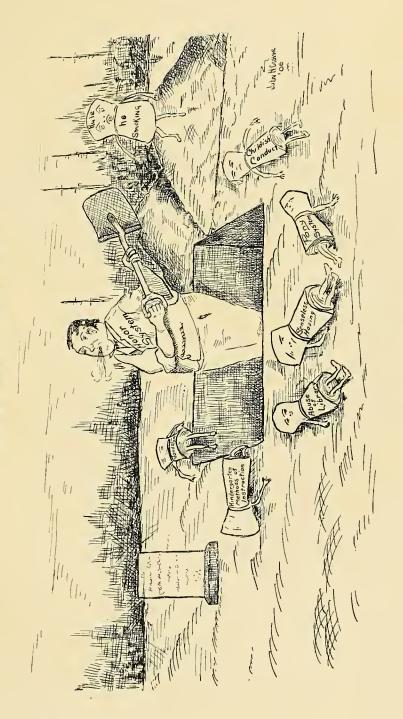

Composed by a respected member of the Faculty Committee and pronounced a chef=d'ocuvre by competent crities

Oh, we are very fond of writing our jokes, But we certainly think it's a pity That the cream of our stuff must be ruthlessly cut By the Faculty Committee!

Oh, we write our rhymes that are rich and fine And send them for print in the city, But think of our grief when word comes back They were cut by the dear Committee!

Oh, sorrows and cares in this life abound; Yet think of us with pity— Whose pictures and sonnets were sadly cut By the Faculty Committee!

N. B.—The Haleyon owes its readers a little explanation for the scant material of this page. A poor, inoffensive little drawing had to be taken out at the last moment, owing to a disagreement in the Faculty Committee. It was only through the kindness of the author above referred to that we escaped a blank page.

H sew Extracts from Dr. Trotter's New Book "Diseases Prevalent in Swarthmore"

Walteria Robertia.

Symptoms: A distinct tendency to cut classes frequently, and an abnormal fluency and ingenuity in the presentation of absurd excuses.

Treatment: 3 gr. Essence of Flunk each semester.

EDWARDINUS BASSETTITUS.

Symptoms: A most noticeable swelling of the cranium accompanied by a very distressing and painful loquaciousness in the direction of relating past experiences and accomplishments. In the worst cases the patient's voice becomes very loud.

Treatment: Unknown at present.

DEANITUS CALDWELLUS.

Symptoms: An extreme shyness and even dullness in regard to all mathematical work, and an inexplicable desire to clean the blackboard in Room H.

Treatment: The first is incurable; the second is readily relieved on receipt of a passing average by the sufferer.

REGIS PRICEANÆMIA.

Symptoms: An evident inclination to bawl in a loud voice all the late popular songs.

Treatment: A monthful of mush. (For reference address S. Lawrence Coxe, who has taken this treatment.)

FISHERBOYDUS WILLIWILBRUS.

Symptoms: A rapid and startling decay of all personal beauty.

Treatment: An electrical massage roller or a heavy coat of Lucas Paint.

BILLYWILLY WALKERINUS.

Symptoms: Somewhat akin to the former; a rapid decay of at least all superfluous flesh.

Treatment: Pads. (For further particulars address Dr. Robert Maxwell, corporosity specialist.)

Jackus Crowkus.

Symptoms: A desire to display unintelligible snapshots of camp life and to relate at great length the trivial doings of Uncle Billy Bumpus or some other dear friend.

Treatment: Solitary confinement.

HIRESLEINAU CURTISSÆ.

(A disease of recent development.)

Symptoms: The victim evinces an insane desire to save laundry bills by wearing a blue flamed shirt.

Treatment: About one meal at the table with Maude.

PHILLIPUS HICKSITOR.

Symptoms: An insatiable desire to fuss, which in some cases runs as far as the Fishball stage.

Treatment: A happy marriage seems to be the only antidote for this malady.

MARIETTÆ VANDEBEGUM.

Symptoms: The use of ultra-fashionable millinery at least once a week, usually on Sundays.

Treatment: The presentation of a mirror to the afflicted has been tried without success.

Jessie—Here is a letter for thee, Bertha.

Bertha—My! I've been waiting for that a thousand years.

Jessie—Why, Bertha, thee must be older than I am, then.

Dr. Stine—We must settle down and overcome, not a moment, but a month of inertia.

Prof. Edmunds—Mr. Perkins, if you knock a man down, is it a private wrong—have you harmed him personally?

Mr. P.-If you hit him hard enough you have.

Query—What are you wrinkling your fore-head over—studying Greek?

Answer-No; I'm only hunting for a point to the verses in the 1905 HALCYON.

There was a young man named Rex Who once took a trip to the Prex. Prex said, "Thee's been smoking"; Rex said, "Thee is joking, "For 'Duckie' has told thee, I spex."

A student at Swarthmore, named Basset, Has bluff for his principal asset. He's trying, I'm told, For the medal of gold. Can he keep up the bluff till he has it?

Lives of barnacles remind us
We can hinder progress, too,
And, departing, leave behind us
Memories sour, as they will do.

DELIGHTFUL EVENT IN CHESTER.

Mr. and Mrs. — Bunting Introduce Their Daughter Howard into Society. A Smart Dance in Her Honor at The Century Club.

Special dispatch to "The Halcyon."

Chester, Pa., Dec. 16.—In one of the smartest events of the season, Miss Howard Bunting, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Mr. and Mrs. ————— Bunting, made her début this evening into the ultra-fashionable circles of Chester and Swarthmore College society. Miss Bunting is a graduate of the Friends' Central School of Philadelphia, and is at present pursuing advanced courses in the ethics of society at Swarthmore College. It is anticipated that her great personal beauty and many talents will give her an enviable position among the Chester belles.

Dr. Hull—According to my recollections, it was the winds which delayed Magellan in passing Terra Del Fuego.

Walt Gee (eating bread and molasses as a last resort)—Aw, they can't expect to raise prize fighters on cold molasses.

"Every little helps," said the cook, as he put the dish water in the sonp.

"Yes," replied Henry, as he sprinkled "Rubifoam" in the hash.

First Student—Ed. Palmer knows a deal and chins some.

Second Student—Yes; a good deal of nose and quite some of chin.

Student—The Glee Club doesn't seem to be doing as good work as usual.

Watters, 1906—Yes, worse luck; I've had a cold for some time.

Direction in the lab. manual: "Pour contents in a test tube and agitate gently."

Strode, 1908 (a half-hour later)—Say, Mr. Taylor, will you please tell me where to find the agitator; I can't find it.

Downing (after vainly trying for a half-hour to pluck a harmonious chord from Noble's guitar)—I wish I could play the guitar; I have so many occasions when it would come in excellent play.

Found on the Fourth Floor Bulletin Board of the East Wing [True Story]:

Wanted:—Second-handed, by a member of 1908: Schelley, Keeths, Byron, Coleregde (Astor Edition).

Room 100.

The grinder is a cauliflower (An honest declaration); In other words a cabbage with A college education.

Jim Lippincott was very blue, And nearly always grumpy, too; But now he's bright and full of vim, For Mary's made him "Sunny Jim."

Dolly-What is a barnacle, Mac?

Mac—Well, Dolly, in New York it is a highly respectable gentleman who goes around stepping on the coat-tails of progress and crying "Whoa!"

Dolly—I suppose in Swarthmore it steps on the whole coat and yells "Stung!"

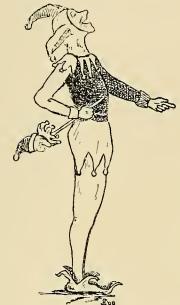

Fussel—White, did you understand that explanation?

White (pompously) Oh, yes, sir; that's very clear. (Laughter.)

Fussell—Y-y-yes, I-I really think it must be very clear if it has gotten through your head. Y-y-you may go to the board and explain it.

White (very abruptly)—Aw, I can't explain it. (Prolonged applause.)

Prof. Hoadley: Well, Reginald, what is the freezing point of mercury?

Rex (with unwonted brilliancy)—Thirty-two degrees below Fahrenheit!"

Prof. Edmunds—Ah! five essays commenced! We are getting along quite salubriously.

Prof. Brooks—If you buy three hats and one pair of shoes, the marginal utility of the hats is very low, while that of the shoes is very high, and you feel yourself pinched there.

Hey, diddle, diddle, Prof. Hayes and his fiddle. If Post did the two-mile in ten, If Maxwell and Crowell made θ B K Oh, where would Jane Harper be then?

Prof. Edmunds—I will first call the roll for last time. Linton! Willie L.—Present.

Prof. E.—Miss Maris!

Alice M.—Absent.

Prof. E.—Ryder!

Tessie (waking up)—Er—I was here this time, but I'm absent last time.

Dr. Battin—You must learn to produce these German sounds. Now, küssen, küssen. Observe the position of the lips.

An Alumnus (seeing Hupe on the asphaltum)—Is that a college student or a foot-ball player?

Dr. Appleton—Miss North, what does thee know of Æschylus?

Mary (her note-book in her hand)—He—

Dr. Appleton—Will thee rise, please?

Mary—I don't know enough to rise.

EXTRACT FROM HOLMES-CALDWELL DEBATE BEFORE THE YOUNG FRIENDS' ASSOCIATION.

Duckie— Λ man has a right to be a fool if he wants to.

Caldwell—Well, then, what are the insane asylums for?

First Student—How did you like the Girls' Glee Club concert?

Second Student—Certainly was a howling success.

Mrs. B. (to a sinner)—Thee keep close to Elizabeth Hall and Freda Craig, and thee will be a good girl.

The Sinner—Ye-e-c-s?

Professor (to class in Italian painting)—Where is Santa Croce?

Student (after careful consideration)—In Italy, I think.

A SAMPLE.

Bosee—Miss Cunningham, will thee please give me some paper to work on?

Miss C.—No, I have no paper to give thee; go get thee own.

Bosee returns about a half-hour later.

Miss C.—Well, where's thee been all this time?
Bosee—To Wharton Hall, Miss Cunningham.
Miss C.—Well, I could have been to Wharton
Hall two or three times.

Bosee—Yes, but my feet hurt.

Hansell, alas, is gone with all his Grin, And Bradley with his war on vice and sin, But still Ed Basset bellows in the hall, And Sallie Coale from out the door peeps in.

THE PREX AND THE PREACHER.

Preacher Ferris, of Wilmington (who wears an expensive wig)—Yes, President Swain, I am eighty-four years old.

The Prex—Why, thee is remarkably well preserved; I don't see a gray hair in thy head.

Miss Dadmun—Dante mentioned this in his Hell. and I have in my notes taken at that time—

Miss Bronk—Now, this verb means that the Romans burned Carthage once and only once.

Mr. Luckie, how many times did the Romans burn Carthage? Blair (in response to a tip)—Er—twice!

SCENE:—THE DEAN'S PARLOR.

Fred Price (entering)—Do you mind if we have a committee meeting in here?

Jane Lippincott (seated comfortably on the sofa)—Why, no; I don't mind.

SHORT SILENCE.

Fred—You are sure you don't mind?

Jane—Yes.

Fred—I hope it won't inconvenience you any.

Jane—Oh, not at all.

Fred (with dawning intelligence)—Oh, you are on the committee, aren't you?

Prof. Cunningham—Absent, is he? Well, I hate absences! No one ever saw me absent!

Ed. Palmer (sotto voce)—Absence makes the heart grow fonder.

Old Mother Hubbard,
She went to the cupboard
To get the poor lads some beer,
And to her delight
The bottles were light—
And so were the lads, I fear.

As a proctor Jeannette's won renown; On third you don't dare even frown. For she sleeps, it is said, With a foot out of bed, She's so anxious to call people down.

TO DIEBOLD.

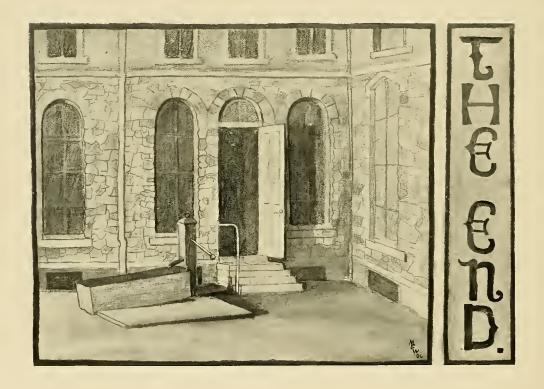

Little tricks of business, Little deeds of "sand," Draw the mighty dollars To his cunning hand.

Half gay, half sad, a moment here We pause to speed the parting year, And, wishing unborn years as bright, We bid you all, Good Luck, Good Night.

ATTENTION!

This means YOU

"The Halcyon" depends almost entirely upon advertisements to pay the cost of publishing. Every year "ads" are harder to obtain because business firms think they are not getting their share of our trade. As a matter of fact they are, but do not know it because YOU do not tell them that you saw their "ad" in "The Halcyon." For the sake of future business managers patronize the firms which we advertise and tell them who sent you.

Swarthmore College

VARTHMORE COLLEGE is located on high ground about twelve miles southwest of Philadelphia. The college buildings command a fine outlook across the fields of Delaware County to the Delaware River and the New Jersey slopes. The campus consists of 200 acres of rolling and partly wooded laud, bordering on Crum Creek. All who visit Swarthmore College acknowledge its estate to be one of exceptional beauty and value, with the special advantage of lying within one of the best regulated boroughs of Pennsylvania.

Swarthmore College was founded and is maintained by the Society of Friends. It offers its inmates the choice home atmosphere and close association of professor and student which are such effective influences in character-building. The chief aim at Swarthmore is to develop the individual student while maintaining the good of all. For the accomplishment of its aims, Swarthmore has been and continues to be the Ideal Small College.

The course of study is based on uniform requirements for admission. The work of the student is divided into three nearly equal parts: Prescribed, Elective, and Major. The prescribed work is limited to certain essential subjects of recognized value as a basis for general education; the elective work gives free play to individual tastes; the adoption of a major subject permits the student's own inclination to be given special training and development by persistent study in one direction. Upon the completion of this undergraduate course the degree of B. A. is conferred; for the young men who desire to fit themselves to become engineers, a prescribed course leads to the degree of B. S. in Engineering.

In the fall of 1904, Swarthmore College opened a New Dormitory for the men and a New Chemical Building. Both these buildings are thoroughly modern and well equipped. Those who desire to enter should apply early.
